

HALAL PORT - BANGKALAN

Background

- The large number of Muslim consumers in Indonesia is a potential for the halal industry market, not only for producers in Indonesia, but also for other countries. Based on 2017 population census data, Indonesia's population reaches 260,000,000. Most (87,180%) of the population of Indonesia are Muslim, amounting to 207,176,162 people.
- Halal, is currently becoming a trend in the global world, it has even become a lifestyle adopted by the people of Indonesia.
- Halal ports are port and logistic service facilities that are managed by the sharia approach. Halal Port is a transit area for products from non-Muslim countries with the aim to Muslim-majority countries.
- One of the potential development of halal port in Bangkalan Regency is in Klampis District.
